Keim Farm Equipment

Ironhide Construction was the General Contractor on the new addition to an existing agricultural sales and service facility. This project started by moving an existing building to a new location on the property and putting in its place a new maintenance shop. The new building features a large 40' wide high lift door to accommodate today's new much larger farm machinery, and 2 overhead cranes to assist in lifting and keeping the employees safe. This new shop will allow the owner to be more efficient and help America's farmers keep feeding the world.
